*Welcome our new
SCBA DOM
Keith Brumfield*

Things have been chugging along here at the BSU. I could never thank our Lord enough for bringing this incredible group of students to the BSU this school year. We have over 40 students who are plugged into the ministry, all 40 of which I do my best to disciple throughout the week. Our Lord brought us a group of students who were eager to learn more about their Bibles, eager to be open with each other and share about their faith and struggles, and most importantly, were eager to serve the Kingdom right now at Crowder College. I could not ask for a more attentive, curious, and ready-to-learn group of students. Many students stay after Bible studies to ask me questions, and I get texts and phone calls all throughout the week with questions, or students seeking advice. These students are also willing to be open with each other and share the deep struggles and doubts. Many tears are shed at our Bible studies, and students reveal things to the group that I can't imagine even most adults would be willing to share. It's been very encouraging to watch these students bear each other's burdens. Lastly, our students have a strong desire to serve the Kingdom at Crowder. My student leadership team perks up every time I tell them of an outreach opportunity, like the Wednesday lunches, prayer walks, or assignments I give them to go minister to someone. It's not just them, though, because every time we do a prayer walk or ministry event, tons of other BSU students show up every time to take part. I also love to point out just how much these students love to fellowship, not just with the BSU, but also with my wife and I. Students tell us all the time that our house has become their second home. Whenever a student is in distress, they call and ask if they can come over – our house is place of peace. Just this last Tuesday, a student was struggling with anger towards another students, and asked to come over for a while, where she was able to calm down. Today, a group of students will be at my house for up to 12 hours, just “living” in our home as if it were theirs. Tomorrow, a group of students is spending the day with us to play cards and watch movies, and talk through some theology questions. On Saturday, a few students are going out with us to have some fun and talk about some spiritual situations they are dealing with. It is encouraging to us that our students enjoy spending time with us so much, and that they include us in the things that they plan. It makes discipleship so much easier and much more enjoyable. Just like Jesus was with his disciples, we have become much more than just teachers and guides for our students – we have become their friends. These last few weeks, I have assigned a student leader to lead our Wednesday Bible study under my guidance. They tell me what they would like to teach about, and then we come together to make sure their lesson is in context and is applicable. Then the student teaches the lesson to a group of 20 or more of their peers while I sit in. It's been great watching my student leaders grow and rise up to these challenges. Also, some of their lessons have been really solid.

The Japan trip is looming. We are excited and anxious, as is always the case with trips like this. The support from the local churches and individuals has been incredible. We are so thankful for your donations and your prayers. As of right now, we have raised enough that each student has $1000 just through donations. This will be a huge help. Our students are eager to get on the ground sharing the gospel. We have weekly meetings to train them on gospel sharing and on Japanese culture. Please be in prayer over this trip. We are praying for people of peace – people that our Lord will soften the hearts of, people that He will put in our path to talk with us.

In order for us to be fully funded, we still need to raise around $20,000. Our students have been fundraising on their own and some of them will get fully funded on their own. Even so, we are hopeful to get as close to that $20,000 as possible. So I encourage you, if you feel led, to consider joining in the support of this trip and helping us get closer to that $20,000 over the next few weeks.
